

Flambe (call name Zeke)

About

Zeke is our handsome Red Tuxedo straight fleece coated large medium stud born from our very own unique lines that were created right here at Cream Puff!

Zeke has the ability to produce puppies in colors of red, cream, caramel, chocolate and black depending on the girl he is mated with - a "Rainbow" litter! He is rumored to be a "true" tuxedo. Most Labradoodles with markings like Zeke carry one copy of the parti gene which causes the white mismarks in his coat. Other breeds carry these markings without producing parti puppies when bred to another dog that looks like them. As Labradoodles are a breed in development, us breeders have known there was the possibility to have the gene combination we believe Zeke carries. It's just very difficult to find this combination with no genetic test available to confirm it. However, Zeke has been bred to two parti girls without producing a parti puppy, so statistically we have struck genetic gold!

Zeke is very affectionate and loves giving his paw. He lives in Pier Village with his wonderful Guardian family.
